Description	Mum's Song explores how the mother-daughter relationship changes over time as new influences of knowledge, authority and a growing sense of independence creep into the daughter's life.

Mum you've known me for oh so long
 Since I stumbled on my very first words
 You helped me trade diapers for shirts and shirts for suits
 You never let me down
 Now I'm older but I'll still come back
 You're my mother and I know you know, you told me so

Do you see yourself in me?
 Did the seasons make a change?
 Do you carry me with you in this life?
 Are we blending in? Are we fading away?
 Is this us growing up?
 Until the day the questions stop

Mum my hands are bigger than yours
 And time moves a half tick slower
 You taught me to walk in your shoes and now they fit
 You never let me down
 Know I'm older but I'll still come back
 You're my mother and I know you know, you told me so

Do you see yourself in me?
 Did the seasons make a change?
 Do you carry me with you in this life?
 Are we blending in? Are we fading away?
 Is this us growing up?
 Until the day the questions stop

Do you see yourself in me?
 Did the seasons make a change?
 Do you carry me with you in this life?
 Are we blending in? Are we fading away?
 Is this us growing up?
 Until the day the questions stop
 Until the day the questions stop
